Possible version

Dear Chris,

How's everything going? I'm delighted to learn that you are having dinner with a Chinese family. Chinese culture values certain customs during social gatherings, so I'd like to share some tips on how to behave properly during your stay here.

First, like English people, the Chinese attach great importance to being punctual. So, please arrive on time. It's also customary to bring a small gift to show your appreciation. Presents like flowers or a bottle of wine will be much welcomed. When at the dinner table, you're advised to participate in the conversation. But remember not to talk with your mouth full. It will be quite embarrassing and impolite. Finally, don't forget to compliment the host on the delicious food. It's considered polite to express your enjoyment of the meal.

I hope my tips might be helpful for you. Enjoy the gathering with your friends. （145w）

Yours,

Li Hua
